White-Collar Crimes practice is getting more complex, involving social conflicts that reflect increasingly sophisticated economic and financial structures and dynamics. In this scenario, the interchange between Criminal Law and other legal practice areas allows criminal attorneys representing their clients with excellence and breadth of knowledge, whether individuals or legal entities. The multidisciplinary of full-service law firms enables criminal lawyers to fully comprehend the context and consequences of the facts brought to their attention. TozziniFreire was pioneer among full-service law firms in Brazil to develop a White-Collar Crimes practice area.

TozziniFreire's White-Collar Crimes practice represents the interests of Brazilian and multinational corporations, as well as individuals, in cases concerning economic, financial, antitrust, tax, money laundering, frauds, biddings, bankruptcy-related issues, and environmental crimes, among others. Our expertise also encompasses highly complex internal investigations involving more than one jurisdiction, C-level training, and implementation of anti-money laundering programs.

Our well-recognized practice group is headed by Isadora Fingerhann, a lawyer with extensive expertise in Criminal Law, acting in State and Federal Courts, as well as before Brazilian High Courts. Her previous experience in a renowned criminal law boutique as a naming partner, combined to a full-service law firm, results in an efficient, dynamic, technical, combative, and multidisciplinary work.

RECOGNITION

INVESTIGATION OPERATIONS

TozziniFreire's White-Collar Crimes team is highly skilled in monitoring Federal Police operations, including the imposition of precautionary measures of arrest, confiscation of assets, search and seizure and breach of fiscal, financial and telephone secrecy, as well as police investigations conducted by the Civil Police of all Brazilian states. Our team also has wide experience in defending individuals and legal entities that are defendants in criminal proceedings, as well as representing their interests as victims of crimes. We have directly worked on the most varied and relevant police operations that have marked the country's recent history.
